To the Public.

IN justice to myself, and the public at large, I am induced to give a true and impartial statement of several transactions within a few weeks past, between T. W. Peyton and myself: which statement I submit to the perusal of a candid and impartial public. On the 16th June, T. W. Peyton purchased of me one barrel of rum, amounting to 17 dols. 84½ cents, to have been paid in cash. On the 26th of June, or thereabouts, T. W. Peyton, came to my warehouse and offered for sale one thousand weight of bacon hams: said they were of a superior quality to any in this place; that they were salted, cured in Alexandria, and clear of skippers; that they were in nice order for shipping, and that he had no doubt but I would be pleased with them. Accordingly I agreed for them, at 14½ cents per pound, payable in sixty days, on condition that the hams were as he represented them to me. He replied, if they were not, it would be optional with me, whether I took them or not. The next day I went to look at the bacon, and as soon as the covers were taken off the tubs I saw the skippers hopping in every direction. I asked T. W. Peyton, if that was the bacon he had conditionally sold me? He said it was of the same parcel, but it was not all in the condition of that which laid to view; that his man Cato had done wrong, by putting the worst hams on the top; that if I would let him know when I wanted them, he would have them taken out of the tubs for my examination. Accordingly, in eight or ten days afterwards, I told him I wished to see the hams: he had them taken out and laid on the floor. But previous to my coming, he made his man Cato rub them well with bran, which, I supposed, was done in order to hide the skippers, and made me more suspicious than otherwise I should have been. But, unluckily for friend Peyton, my eye sight being pretty good, I soon discovered the skippers peeping through the bran, and others, more stout and strong, hopping about the floor. I observed to my worthy friend, that I was very suspicious of the bacon, and did not believe it was such as he had represented to me; that I should be very particular in my examination, as I had agreed to give him an extra price for it, and requested his man Cato to bring me a knife, or some such thing, to scrape the bran out of the places where I suspected the body of the skippers lay, which T. W. Peyton forbid, and positively refused my examining any other way, than by taking ham by ham in my hands—to which I replied, I should then consider the bargain void; that I did not believe it was such bacon as he had represented, otherwise he could not, with propriety, refuse my examining it. He said his man Cato had examined it, and reported it to be merchantable, sound bacon, and that he considered it my bacon as it laid. I observed to him, I should not take one ham without examining it. The next day T. W. Peyton came to my warehouse, and asked how we should settle about the hams. I told him the hams were not such as I had agreed for, and therefore considered the bargain void. He said he did not wish to differ with me about them, and would make a fair bargain with me—that if I would not warrant him he would not warrant me. I observed I had no wish to warrant him, neither did I intend it. Then T. W. Peyton observed, that he had the advantage of me, that he owed me for a barrel of rum, which he would keep as an equivalent for my not taking the bacon—to which I replied, I had forgot that he owed me for a barrel of rum, that I supposed him a man of more honor than to take that advantage, if it could be taken. In two or three days after, T. W. Peyton came again to my warehouse, and informed me, he had sold the greater part of his bacon, but he should not get so much by several dollars as I was to have given him for it—but said he was damn'd glad he had got clear of it, that some of the hams began to stink so bad, he could hardly stay in the house; that he had sent his man Cato with a part of them to 'Brocker's Tavern,' with orders to sell for what he could get; that there was some still worse, if he could not do better, he would pay some person to take them out of the house.

The third and last contract is of a more serious nature, inasmuch as the amount is much larger, and carries with it a degree of evidence that cannot be denied by T. W. Peyton, or any of his friends, and will even go to prove, to the satisfaction of every honest and virtuous citizen, that the two preceding statements are correct: On the 26th July, R. and W. P. Richardson purchased of T. W. Peyton, nine half barrels superfine flour, which flour they received before they had paid for it; on the 27th purchased of him 41 barrels superfine flour, and on the 28th paid him for the whole of said flour, as a proof of which I have thought proper to annex his bill and receipt, viz.

Messrs. R. & W. P. Richardson,
Bought of Thos. W. Peyton,
	Dls. Cts.
41 bbls. S. fine flour at 37s6	256 25
9 half do. at 21s	31 50
	Dols. 287 75

Alexandria, July 28, 1803,

Received Payment,

THOS. W. PEYTON.

On the 29th I demanded of him, by order, the amount of the rum—he refused to pay it; I went to him myself—he still refused to pay for the rum, saying, he had my word that I would not warrant him; I told him I should adhere strictly to it—but would soon put it in the power of some other person to warrant him if he would not say he intended to pay for it; he still declared he did not intend it; I then assigned the amount over to R. Brook who warranted him immediately and had him summoned to appear before A. Faw next morning at 9 o'clock; but previous to the time of meeting he went before A. Faw and swore that P. Janney was a material witness in the case of the rum—that he was not in town, and without him he could not go into trial. In order to satisfy those prejudiced few I will here annex P. Janney's deposition.

District of Columbia, County of Alexandria, ss.

PERSONALLY appeared before me, A. Faw, one of the Justices of Peace for said County, Phineas Janney, who having affirmed, deposeth and saith, in the transactions between the Richardsons & Thomas W. Peyton, as to the purchase of the rum, he has no knowledge, but was informed, by T. W. Peyton, he had sold a quantity of bacon to them, the Richardsons, and they also, in conversation, told this deponent they had bought a quantity of bacon of T. W. Peyton, and that it was a hard bargain. T. W. Peyton, in the store of this deponent, told him the Richardsons had agreed to give up the barrel of rum he had purchased to release them from the bacon contract, and made a calculation what deduction the price of the rum would make on the price of the bacon, and supposed it would be about 1½ cents per lb. From the Richardsons he had no information except about the purchase of the bacon. T. W. Peyton said, when they came for the bacon, he refused to let them cut it to examine, and otherwise they would not receive it unless they were permitted to examine it their way, and that they might examine it any other way, but not to cut it—and further this deponent saith not.

PHINEAS JANNEY.

Affirmed before
A. FAW.

On the 30th July I gave an order on him for the flour above spoken of—he refused delivering it, and sent me a letter to this effect—that he had left Craven P. Thompson his assignee, that he thought proper to detain any property, in his possession, on which I had a claim, until I would come forward and agree to leave the settlement of our accounts to three disinterested men. Accordingly I went to Craven P. Thompson the day on which T. W. Peyton left this place; he refused to have any thing to do with the flour without an order from T. W. Peyton. Next day C. P. Thompson agreed, before several respectable citizens, he was willing to leave the whole of the accounts to three men, such as we could agree upon. He said he would come to the warehouse at 12 o'clock in order to fix upon the men; instead of coming, at 2 o'clock I received a note from him, appointing three men himself, and said he was willing to submit to their decision. I went to C. P. Thompson and told him I would agree to two of the men he had appointed—but he would not agree to any other man that I could name; but, said he would consult the Colonel, his uncle, and would let me know next morning at 8 o'clock. I waited with patience until 1 o'clock, and then went in pursuit of him, found him on the wharf, then he said he would have nothing to do with it, that he had business enough of his own to attend to, any thing W. Jones would do he would agree to. The above statement I pledge my honor is correct to the best of my knowledge, and that I have not received one cent of the above claim against T. W. Peyton except the nine half barrels of flour above spoken of. In this situation of affairs he has left Alexandria, and it is problematical with some whether he will return shortly.

RICHARD P. RICHARDSON,
Alexandria, 16th Aug. 1803.

European Intelligence.

NEW YORK, August 12.

From our London papers we have selected the following, as the most important articles:—

London June 14.

Bonaparte has requested that prayers should be put up in all the Churches of France for the success of his arms.

We understand the Batavian Minister yesterday requested to have his passport.

One of the secretaries belonging to the French embassy was sent out of this country on Saturday. He was accompanied to Dover by a messenger, and embarked on board the Exprels packet.

His majesty was specially sent for yesterday by Mr. Addington and Lord Hawkesbury, in consequence of the arrival of a French messenger on Sunday. No council was held, but Mr. Addington and Lord Hawkesbury, had audience of his majesty for a considerable time. There can be no doubt but that the dispatch related to the taking of Hanover.

The Maria, Rose from Cayenne, and L'Amite, —, from St. Domingo, are taken and sent into the Downs.

June 15.

Mr. Liffon's arrival in town, and M. Schimmelpennick, the Dutch Ambassador, being on the point of returning to the Hague, a message from his majesty, we suppose, will be delivered to both houses perhaps to day, informing them that he has given orders for issuing Letters of Marque and reprisal against the Batavian Republic. Government, however, has sent orders to Plymouth to liberate the masters, mate, and crews of the detained Batavian ships, and they may return home immediately. Most of the seamen, says our Plymouth letter, enter on board of men of war or privateers.

We received last night the Paris papers of the 11th, they contain nothing more than a statistical account of Hanover, from whence the French expect to draw large supplies. What exaction can accomplish, will we have no doubt, befalling accomplished by the invaders.

The last article in the convention, dictated to the Regency, has been inserted with a view to induce a belief that Bonaparte is anxious to accept the mediation of Russia for the purpose of restoring peace. In the first place, we have to observe, that long before any mediation could be effectual, the French will have plundered and drained the Hanoverian territory of every thing that is valuable. When requisition, another name for robbery, is the order of the day, the French Republic does not let the grass grow under its feet. In the second place we entertain some doubts whether it be any longer consistent with the honor of this country to accept the mediation of Russia. She no longer possesses that quality of impartiality which is an indispensable ingredient in the character of a mediator. She mediated the plan of indemnities which was to fix the fate and secure the peace of the empire. She was bound to protect the independence of Hanover, and she does not appear to have taken one step to stop the gradual expedition of the French.

We deplore the fate of the Hanoverian territories; but, if they be the innocent victims, we are the innocent cause of their miseries; and let it be recollected, that it is only in this instance that the union, in the same august Personage of the office of Elector of Hanover with the dignity of King of Great Britain, has been injurious to Hanover:—hitherto she has owed, in a great degree to that union, the preservation of the integrity and independence of her dominions, and a long continuance of the blessings of peace.

"I am master of all the country of Hanover, and particularly of the mouths of the Elbe and Weser." Such are the words of General Mortier, and such is the conduct of a man whose first step in a war into which he affects to say he has been forced by the violation of a solemn treaty peace, is of Lunenburg.

By rendering mouths of France immediately from now really Weak calculate the continued our benefit, that our beneficial to rope as it is.

Paris, June 10.
CAPITULATION OF HANOVER.
Edward Mortier, Lieutenant General commanding in chief to the minister at war.

"Head Quarters at Nieuwbourg, June 4.
Citizen Minister,

"I had the honor to inform you, by my letter of the 28th ult of the march of the French army towards Hanover. After a march excessively fatiguing across arid sands and marshy heaths, I took a position on the 31st before Wechte. I was assured that the enemy guarded the line of the Hunte. Gen. Hammersham, commanding the advanced guard of the King of England, occupied Diepholtz with the second and sixth regiments of infantry, two regiments of cavalry and a division of artillery. I made my dispositions to dislodge him on the following morning. The second division commanded by general Schiner, that of cavalry under the orders of gen. Nansouty, received orders to post themselves on Goldenstedt, to force the passage of the Hunte, and to direct themselves upon Sublingon, that they might cut off every thing they might find between that place and Diepholtz, which the division of Gen. Montrichard had orders briskly to attack. The enemy seeing that by this movement he was turned on his right, retired during the night to Berstin.

"On the 1st inst. the advanced guard, commanded by gen. Drouet, had a warm skirmish before Bauven, with the rear-guard of the enemy.

"On the 2d the army united before Sublingon; the advanced guard moved towards Berstin; it here fell in with the enemy, and notwithstanding the superiority of numbers, and the extreme fatigue of the troops, who had that day marched twelve leagues, general Drouet gave the order to attack. The enemy kept up a warm cannonade. Some squadrons of the second regiment of Hussars charged with valor the light dragoons of the 9th regiment. They broke the line of that corps, who fled, and we took several prisoners.

"I was informed by my spies, that the head of the bridge of Nieuwbourg was repaired, and that the enemy had collected all his artillery on the right bank of the Weser. I saw how important it was for me to precipitate my movement. I marched my reserve artillery, and I made all my dispositions to push and beat every thing before me in the Weser, to force the bridge of Nieuwbourg or to pass behind Stolzau, and intercept by that means the communication with the capital.

"The troops were in march when the civil and military deputies of the regency of Hanover presented themselves before my advanced posts; they invited me to suspend my march, and announced to me that they were ready to make advantageous propositions.

"My answer was in the negative; they returned to make me new propositions; I informed them I would listen to none, unless I had the certainty of immediately occupying the country of Hanover, and particularly all the strong places belonging to it. After a long discussion they signed a convention, which I accepted under the condition that it should be ratified by the respective governments. You will see that the army of the King of England are prisoners of war, that I am master of the whole country, and particularly of the mouths of the Elbe and the Weser.

"I have given orders to seize all the vessels which are on those rivers. The Duke of Cambridge, the son of the King of England, and governor of Hanover, judged it proper to give in his resignation before the battle, and to make his retreat in haste. He had, however, promised to die with the Levy en masse; it is probable, that he will be embarked before we arrive at the mouth of the Elbe.

"We found at Nieuwburg 14,000 new muskets, and a good deal of artillery. According to the accounts rendered to me, I presume that I shall find in the magazines and places of Hanover about 100,000 muskets, and more than 1000 Cannon.

"I shall be the day after to-morrow in the city of Hanover, the Continental Capital of the King of England. I have found a considerable number of horses for remounting the cavalry and the artillery carriages.

Much praise is due to the care and zeal of gen. Dulauly.

"I have the honor to salute you.
"EDWARD MORTIER."

CONVENTION,
Signed between Messrs the Civil and Military deputies of the Regency of Hanover, and Lieutenant General Mortier, Commander in Chief of the French army.

Art. 1. Hanover shall be occupied by the French army, as well as the forts dependent on it.

Art. 2. The Hanoverian troops shall retire behind the Elbe; they shall engage on their parole of honor not to commit any hostilities, or to bear arms against the French army or its allies, so long as the war shall continue between France and England. They shall not be released from this oath until after they have been exchanged against an equal number of French generals, officers, subalterns, soldiers, or sailors, who may happen to be at the disposal of England.

3. No individual of the Hanoverian troops shall quit the place assigned him, without informing the General commander in Chief.

4. The Hanoverian army shall retire with the honors of war. The regiments shall take with them their field pieces.

5. The artillery, powder, arms and ammunition of every description, shall be placed at the disposal of the French army.

6. All the effects whatsoever belonging to the King of England, shall be placed at the disposal of the French army.

7. All public monies shall be sequestered—but that of the University shall be appropriated to its original destination.

8. Every English soldier, or agent whatsoever, in the pay of England, shall be arrested by order of the General commander in chief, and sent into France.

9. The General commander in chief reserves to himself the power of making in the government, and authorities constituted by the Elector, such changes as he shall think proper.

10. All the French cavalry shall be remounted at the expence of Hanover; the Electorate shall also provide for the pay, clothing and food of the French army.

11. The worship of the different religions shall be maintained on the present footing.

12. All persons, and all the property and families of Hanoverian officers, shall be under the safe guard of French honor.

13. All the revenues of the country, as well as the Electoral domains, and the public constitutions, shall be at the disposal of the French government. The engagements already made shall be respected.

14. The present government of the Electorate shall abstain from exercising any species of authority throughout the country occupied by the French troops.

15. The General commander in chief shall levy on the Electorate of Hanover such contribution as he shall think necessary for the wants of the army.

16. Every article on which doubts shall arise, shall be interpreted favorably to the inhabitants of the Electorate.

17. The preceding articles shall not prejudice the stipulations which may be agreed upon in favor of the Electorate, between the First Consul and any mediating power.

Done at the Head Quarters at Sublingon, the 31st of June, 1803—
(Saving the approbation of the First Consul.)

MORE OF LOUISIANA.

To the Phalanx.

Did not Mr. Livingston meet a cold reception from the consulate of France; and did he not experience, even mortifying neglect, until after the close of the 12th day of March last.

Was it not on this identical twelfth day, that a copy of the British King's message to his Parliament, denouncing vengeance upon France, was presented to the astonished Bonaparte,—and was it not, on the 13th, (nay the very next morn) that Mr. Livingston received the first jesuitical smile from Bishop Talleyrand.

Did not the Bishop from this time, bow and smile, and cajole both Livingston and Monroe? and did he not, finally making a virtue of necessity, condescend to befriend his sister republic with his master's title to Louisiana, for the trifling consideration of fifteen millions of dollars!!!

Now as this grant was clearly made subsequent to said Message—and as, by that Message the Corsican Consul deprecated the fate of Louisiana in common with his territorial possessions in the west; think ye Demo's, that ye have got a clear and indisputable title thereto?

The governor of Martinique, VILLARET, in his late gasconade "to the troops composing the garrisons of Martinique and St. Lucie," says, "Remember, it is more difficult to get at the English than to conquer them, and that if they embark on our coast, they themselves remove the only obstacle which protects them against you."

Why Citoyen, Citoyen! Your Corsican master got at Abercrombie, Smith, and Hutchinson—nay Citoyen, you yourself got at the English a few days after the publication of your all conquering proclamation at St. Lucie, a part of your own government; and yet, Citoyen the only obstacles were not removed.

We are sorry to inform our readers that New York, again presents a scene of distress and confusion. In this consternation, only seventeen malignant cases reached the health committee there, on the 9th instant. The confusion of the fright of its citizens, has we fear consigned many to the tomb without report. We have withheld this alarming fact, until the public prints of that, now devoted City, warrants our promulgation. May our other seaports avert the contagion.

A countryman coming from the Alexandria Theatre the other evening where that elegant spectacle, in the style of a Melo Drame had been represented; was loud in his commendations of that which he beheld. "What d'ye call it?" cried a brother Buckskin, who guarded the team, during his friends recreation. Why, returned the former, it was a Melo Drame.

The schooner Sparrow of this port was left at Surinam 30 days since just arrived.

The sloop Little Poll, Roberts was sailed August 7, out 5 days from this port for New Providence Lat. 33, 29, long. 73 5.

For the following information which we derived from a friend in Washington, and which may be depended upon, we return our sincere thanks.

"Mr. Smith our late ambassador at Lisbon embarked at Naples a short time since on board of an American vessel bound for the United States, which in a few days after sailing fell in with and after a considerable engagement was captured by a corsair belonging to the Dey of Algiers. [Alex. Ex.]

Extract of a letter from J. L. Cathcart, Esq. to the Secretary of State, dated Leghorn, 22d June, 1803.

"The enclosed communication from my correspondent, Mr. Wm. Higgins, an English merchant at Malta, gave me inexpressible satisfaction. I will give you it verbatim.

"Malta May 24, 1802.

"We have no news here. The Adams arrived yesterday, but the commodore with the John Adams are cruising off Tripoli. The last vessel has brought in the Tripoline lord high admiral's ship which took in going into Tripoli, in direct violation of the pais given her. She is certainly a good prize; though I imagine the commodore will not condemn her, before he hears from home."

The Anti-Flux.

THE great number of children who fall victims to the Cholera, in this season of the year, is a strong inducement to publish the following remedy, which has always succeeded when the lax proceeded not from the effect of worms, the cutting of teeth, or from repeated humours: it strengthens the debilitated organs and neutralises the acrimony of the morbid humour.

Put half a drachm of salt of Tartara in a pint of water, this is all the remedy.

Give the patient of this alkaline water every two hours, lengthening the interval of the doses as soon as the complaint begins to abate, which commonly happens the same day.

To a child one year old, two teaspoons full for the first dose, and afterwards only one spoonfull, every two hours, in two or three spoonfull of milk and water, sweetened together; increasing the dose according to the age, half a tea spoonfull more for every year.

This remedy is equally effectual for adults; it is a sort of specific in bilious diarrhoea.

The first dose for adult, is a table spoonfull, mixed with an equal quantity of sweetened water, afterwards the half of this dose four or five times in 24 hours.

If due attention be given to this remedy, hundreds of victims will be snatched from the jaws of death every year.

The heads of families, who may be ignorant, that the salt of Tartara is dissolvable in the air ought to preserve it for use in a phial stoppered up.

The printers in general, for humanity sake, are requested to give this remedy all possible publicity. (Telegraph.)

A VALUABLE MILL FOR SALE.

THE subscriber wishes to sell his MILL, known by the name of Clifton Mill, within two and an half miles of Dumfries, on the waters of Quantico, which is as constant a stream as any in this part of the country, and in an exceeding healthy situation; very conveniently situated to a fine wheat country, not being more than half a mile out of the way, in going to Dumfries, from the main road leading from Frontier Court-House, Centerville &c. (and by some thought not any out of the way at all) and a very good road to it. There are, if the purchaser chooses, 227½ acres of land which may go with mill, (except one acre which will be reserved) or a smaller quantity as may be agreed on. The mill is an over-shot, with a wheel of 20 feet 9 inches and a feet head, with two pairs of stones. One pair of French burrs of 5 feet, the other of Cologne, with every apparatus necessary for carrying on merchant business to the best advantage. The mill house is fifty feet long and twenty seven feet wide, two stories high, with a small kiln for drying corn, together with barn, stable, cow house and lumber house, convenient to the mill. A convenient dwelling house, (not quite finished) with a kitchen, meat and corn house; the whole of which have been built within 7 years past. There are two very thriving young orchards of peach and other fruit trees. It was supposed, had not the frost killed the fruit this spring, upwards of 100 gallons of brandy might have been made from them. Should the whole of the land be required with the mill, there is another small house, kitchen and meat house, at a short distance from the former.

The situation of this property must render it a desirable acquisition to any person inclined to engage in this line of business, particularly so as it is situated to near tide water. It is deemed unnecessary to say any thing more respecting the premises, as it is presumed any person inclined to purchase would wish to see them. Nothing would induce me to part with this valuable property, but the pressing demands against me which I am anxious to discharge, therefore a great bargain may be expected. Any further information may be known on application to JOHN SOWDEN, Clifton Mill.

May Term, 1803.

Under a Decree of the said

Court, as the Commissioners will expose to public sale, for ready money, on the premises, at 12 o'clock on Friday the 19th day of August next,

That valuable and extensive

FARM,

called Mount Salus, alias Millthorpe, lying in Fairfax county, on Difficult and Wolfe Traps; containing by deed 550 acres, and by survey 673 acres. The mansion house is on a high, healthy and agreeable situation, convenient to which are springs of good water. The house is 40 by 18 feet, two rooms on a floor, with a nine feet passage and stair case, 2 brick chimneys, with a fire place to each room, a piazza the whole length of the front, a cellar 40 by 18, walled with stone and divided into two apartments. There are several small buildings, near the mansion house and garden. There are, also, a valuable merchant and grist mill, saw mill, distillery, miller's house and overseer's house. The mill house is 40 by 30, two story high, half the lower story of stone, the other part of wood, and covered with shingles. There are one pair of Burr and one pair of Cologne stones, three holding cloths almost new, one screen, all now in use in manufacturing wheat and grinding grist. The still house 40 by 30, one story high, walls of stone and shingled roof, the floors planked, the upper laid for making grain, and troughs fixed round the whole house, contrived to carry water to every vessel which may need it. Three stills and one boiler can be worked to advantage in the said house. The waters of Wolfe Trap, on which the mill and saw mill stand, are constant streams. The situation for country customers, or purchasing wheat, is exceeded by none in the county or neighborhood, not being more than 17 miles from Alexandria or George Town, where there are excellent markets for country produce of every description, and about 19 miles from Washington. The land is fertile and productive, and the soil well adapted to receive improvement from the use of plaster of Paris. There are upwards of 1000 panels of fence on the land, and about 160 or 170 acres of well timbered land belonging to the tract. There have been nearly 20 acres of timothy made, lying on Wolfe Trap and Difficult runs; 50 acres more may be made at a small expence. This farm enjoys many natural advantages, which are unnecessary for us to mention, it being taken for granted that every person wishing to buy such property will avail themselves of an opportunity of viewing the premises, previous to the day of sale, capt. James Wiley, residing near the land, will show the premises, and also a plat of the survey, which is left with him for the information of those concerned.

The title papers will be exhibited on the day of sale.
